Comet Promise Overview

Beginning fall 2025, the UT Dallas Comet Promise expands the current Tuition Promise program by increasing the eligible family income threshold and including transfer students. Eligible students will have their tuition and fees covered through scholarships, grants and tuition exemptions from federal, state and institutional funds with any remaining tuition costs covered by Comet Promise funding. The program's expansion is made possible with funding assistance from an endowment created by the UT System. To be eligible for Comet Promise, students must:

- Be a Texas resident at the time of admission.
- We encourage applicants to complete their application for admission by Dec. 1 to be admitted by the Jan. 15 deadline. The priority deadline for spring is May 1.
- Submit a completed FAFSA or TASFA application with supporting documents to the Office of Financial Aid by Jan. 15. Submit a completed FAFSA or TASFA application with supporting documents to the Office of Financial Aid by Jan. 15 for fall and by May 1 for spring.
- Have a family income of $100,000 or less.
- Have demonstrated financial need as determined by information provided on the FAFSA or TASFA.
- Be enrolled at least three-quarter time at UT Dallas.

Frequently Asked Questions

How does the Comet Promise program work?

For eligible students, UTD will use sources such as scholarships, grants and/or tuition exemptions that come from federal, state and institutional levels to cover tuition and mandatory fees. Tuition and mandatory fees will be covered up to demonstrated financial need, as determined by the FAFSA or TASFA. Only tuition and mandatory fees for fall and spring terms are covered; summer tuition and fees are not covered. Students will not necessarily see a fund called “Comet Promise” on their financial aid offer but will see a combination of funding awarded to cover tuition.

How do I apply?

Students are automatically considered if they meet the eligibility criteria. Please note that if a student is selected for verification and the family income changes after being verified, this could impact eligibility for Comet Promise.

Can I qualify if my family’s income is more than $100,000?

Students must meet the eligibility criteria during their entering year to be considered for the program.

Are these awards renewable?

Yes. To continue to receive Comet Promise students must:

- Continue to meet basic eligibility requirements.
- Complete at least 24 credit hours each academic year (fall, spring and summer semesters).
- Maintain a 2.5 cumulative GPA.
- Remain in good academic standing.
- Have a total family income of $100,000 or less.

Program Limits

Your eligibility for the Comet Promise ends when you graduate with a bachelor's degree or when you reach one of the following program limits, whichever comes first:

Initial Recipient as	Years from 1 st Comet Promise	Overall Attempted Credit Hours	Overall Credit Hours Paid
Transfer Student	3	150	90
Freshman Student	5	150	150

Is Comet Promise available for the summer?

Only tuition and mandatory fees for the fall and spring terms are covered; summer tuition and mandatory fees are not covered. First-time college students and transfer students who begin in the summer and meet the eligibility criteria will be considered for Comet Promise beginning in the fall term.

Can Comet Promise be used for study abroad programs?

Comet Promise can only be used for UT Dallas tuition and mandatory fees.

Can I qualify if I am working on a second bachelor's degree or a graduate degree?

Comet Promise is only available for students working on their first bachelor's degree.

What other options are there for financial aid?

Students who don't qualify for Comet Promise may still have scholarship, grant, work-study and loan options to help pay for their educational expenses. Students should apply for financial aid by completing either a FAFSA or a TASFA and should contact their college or school regarding scholarship opportunities.
