Undergraduate Scholarships

The Jindal School awards merit-based scholarships to current undergraduate students for the fall semester. Each scholarship has specific requirements, including but not limited to academic performance, area of study, residency status, leadership, community service and level of student organization involvement.

Applicants may email their undergraduate scholarship questions to: jsom-ug-scholarship@utdallas.edu.

Important Notes

- JSOM undergraduate departmental and donor scholarships do not make you eligible for the competitive scholarship in-state tuition waiver.
- Current students must apply for competitively awarded scholarships through our Scholarship Application Portal.
- This is a two-step application, and students must complete both sections of the application to be eligible for Jindal School scholarships. The two sections may be completed at different times, but both sections must be completed no later than May 1.
- Students who fully answer all questions and all essay questions in the second part of the application improve their likelihood of being considered for a Jindal School scholarship and suggested students allow about one hour to thoughtfully complete both sections of the scholarship application.

- Jindal School students submit one common application to be considered for all Jindal School scholarships, most of which are on the Student Scholarships website.
- Jindal School students will receive no more than one Jindal School donor scholarship per award cycle.
- Scholarships are not transferable and not deferrable. If a recipient defers enrollment, the scholarship will be canceled.
- The decisions for current students' scholarships will be announced by late August.
- Students may check their scholarship application status at any time via the Scholarship Application Portal.

Incoming Freshman

UT Dallas offers Academic Excellence Scholarships (AES) for incoming first-time-in-college freshman students admitted for the fall term immediately following high school graduation (see below).

— Academic Excellence Scholarships (AES)

Students are automatically considered for an AES award on the basis of their completed application to the university, and no other materials are required (see qualifications).

— National Merit Finalists

The Honors College coordinates with the University's National Merit Scholarship Division to offer special scholarships to students who are National Merit Finalists.

Incoming Transfers

All transfer students admitted to the Jindal School of Management are considered for most of the transfer scholarships and opportunities as part of their admission process. Incoming Transfers may visit the UT Dallas Financial Aid page for more information about these opportunities.
