Olivia Neuner, Spring 2025

My semester abroad was the best six months of my life. I had the most amazing professors, experienced many new cultures, and made many diverse friendships. I can blindly throw a dart on a map; wherever it lands, I probably have a new friend there. I can't name one specific memory that was my favorite because it was all the small moments that meant the most to me: being called a princess by aunties when dressing in traditional Hanbok, playing billiards after school with friends, pulling all-nighters with my neighbors to study, or exploring new delicious restaurants every weekend. I will remember this time fondly for the rest of my life and can't wait to see where my new connections will take me."

International Internship

There are many ways to find an international internship. Some students use their personal connections, while others find positions listed on 12twenty or through an internship placement company.

Browse international internship opportunities online through The Intern Group, Global Experiences, or report your own. Once you've received an internship offer, you'll need to start an application in the Comets Abroad Portal and report your internship in Orion.

When students use an internship placement company, they pay a fee directly to the placement company that finds internships in their field of study. These companies often help students obtain their visas, find a place to live, find transportation to/from the airport and more.

Eligibility

- Students must be at least 18 years of age by the program departure date.
- Students must be degree-seeking at The University of Texas at Dallas.
- Students must be in good academic standing at the time of application (minimum 2.0 GPA for undergraduate students and 3.0 GPA for graduate students).
- Students must have completed at least two full-time semesters at UTD by the time of their intended study abroad program.

Faculty-Led Programs

On a faculty-led program, the instructor and enrolled students travel to a country to visit various companies and learn about their operations compared to similar companies in the United States. Students may also venture for sightseeing and learn about the country's culture and history.

These international study trips usually last approximately 7- 10 days and often take place over Spring Break or Fall Break. Students pay tuition for the course and a program fee that covers their participation in the program. Students are responsible for their own additional fees and expenses.

One of the most common questions students have about studying abroad is how to fund their experience. Fortunately, there are many ways to make an international program affordable, and students are encouraged to explore the various study abroad scholarship opportunities available to them.

The two main funding opportunities available to JSOM students are the International Education Fund Scholarship and the JSOM Abroad Fund Scholarship. These scholarships can help offset the cost of studying abroad and make international experiences more accessible to students from all backgrounds.

Frequently Asked Questions - Study Abroad

— How early should I apply for an exchange program?

JSOM recommends that students begin considering their exchange program a year in advance and apply for a program six months in advance. See the Education Abroad deadlines for more detailed information.

— What are the costs of participating in an Exchange Abroad program?

The student will pay UTD tuition, education abroad application fee, airfare, visa fees, and general living expenses. Consult with the JSOM Abroad Office for more information.

— I have applied online. Now what?

Look for an email from jsomabroad@utdallas.edu and the Education Abroad office. As part of the online application, you must meet with a member of the JSOM Study Abroad Team.

— What are the different ways students can study abroad?

Exchange, International internship and Faculty-led trip

— Do Global Business students have to study abroad?

Yes. International experience is required for Global Business majors and can be fulfilled with a semester-long exchange abroad program, an international internship or a JSOM faculty-led trip.

— I am not a Global Business student. Can I still study abroad?

— Can I complete my study abroad and my internship requirements at the same time?

Yes. The Global Business majors may fulfill their study abroad requirement (international experience) by completing an international internship.

— What semester is the best for studying abroad?

The ideal time to study abroad is the second semester of sophomore or first semester of Junior year. NO undergraduate or graduate student can participate in an exchange program during their last semester at UTD.

— What are the UTD scholarships for study abroad?

Yes. JSOM students have two ways to apply for study abroad scholarships at UTD. The International Education Fund Scholarship (IEFS) and the JSOM Travel Scholarship.

— Will my scholarships, such as the Academic Excellence Scholarship (AES), still apply even if I spend a semester abroad for an exchange program?

Yes. If the student meets all the scholarship GPA and enrollment requirements, the scholarship they received for attending UTD will still apply.

— How do I get course credit for courses I took during a semester exchange program?

— Will my exchange program delay my graduation?

— Are all the exchange programs on the Education Abroad website available to JSOM students?

— Are there any summer exchange programs?

ABROAD OFFICE. ALL COURSES TAKEN WHILE STUDYING ABROAD MUST apply to students' majors, and students are advised that the more classes they have taken at UTD, the fewer options they will have to choose from at their exchange university. Students should be aware that pre-approval does not guarantee enrollment.

It depends. You should have no trouble graduating on time if you participate in an exchange program early in your academic career. However, because every student has different credits and a unique degree plan, you should schedule an appointment with the JSOM advising office (jsomugadvising@utdallas.edu) and walk through your degree plan.

UTD has many exchange agreements with business schools worldwide, and these universities reserve a certain number of spots specifically for JSOM students. While JSOM students are welcome to apply for a UTD exchange program at a non-business school, they should be aware that these programs are competitive, and some schools will have very few courses available that will apply to a student's degree plan.

No. Instead, students should treat this as an affiliated (third-party) partner program, even if they study at one of our partner institutions. Students should still be able to receive academic credit if they take courses from an accredited institution. JSOM recommends the London School of Economics Summer School if students are looking to study abroad during the summer.

— If I find an international internship, do I still need to apply to study abroad?

Yes. For international internships, students must apply through the company, complete an application through the Comets Abroad Portal and report their internship in Galaxy (Orion).

— Are international internships paid?

— If I cancel my faculty-led trip application, will I get a refund?

No. Once the student has been accepted and enrolled in this course, the student is NOT ELIGIBLE for a refund. If the student cannot participate, they will still be required to pay the full program fee.

— Can alumni or spouses of current students participate in a faculty-led trip course?

Yes. Alumni and spouses are allowed to participate in the trip portion of faculty-led trips. However, they must pay all fees and complete all waivers and pre-departure activities required for participation. They cannot accompany the class to any meetings or company visits.

— How will I be charged the program fee for a faculty-led trip?

The full program fee will be added as a course fee to your student/bursar's account.
