School of Arts, Humanities, and Technology

UT Dallas > Bass School of Arts, Humanities, and Technology > Undergraduate Advising

Advising is an integral part of the university experience. Your advisor will assist you in developing a meaningful educational plan compatible with your career and personal goals.

UTD Advising Mission Statement: The University of Texas at Dallas undergraduate academic advising is a collaborative process between students and their advisors that provides a path for student success. Academic advising supports student achievement of academic and professional goals, promotes student academic ownership, and fosters a sense of belonging to the campus community.

Take note: Beginning January 7, 2026, all academic advising appointments for current students at UT Dallas will be scheduled through Polaris, the new student support and advising portal. Polaris does not replace Orion for class registration, grades, financial aid, or billing. Prospective students should email BassUGinterest@utdallas.edu to schedule an appointment and may contact the Office of Admission and Enrollment for information about admissions events and campus visits.

Advising Our Current Students

Our academic advisors in the Harry W. Bass Jr. School of Arts, Humanities, and Technology assist students in reaching their ultimate goal of graduation. Advisors meet with students to discuss degree requirements, course enrollment, student success skills, difficulties with coursework, career options, and refer students to on-campus resources. Our advisors are experts in helping students find the resources that they need to be successful and are passionate about doing all that they can to help students.

Each student has a tailored advising experience to ensure that each student is assigned to an advisor based on their last name. Assigned caseloads allow each advisor to cultivate a lasting relationship with their advisees and provide relevant information to the student's experience. Academic advising is a collaborative process in the Bass School and requires active participation by both the student and the advisor.

When you schedule a meeting, please make sure you have thought through exactly what you would like to accomplish during the meeting. Please see the "Schedule Appointment" link under your advisor's name.

Students: While advisors confer with you about courses and educational experiences, you are responsible for defining your academic program and for making progress toward your degree. You will verify your class schedule each semester and see that necessary transactions are completed by the published deadlines (refer to the academic calendar). You are responsible for all documentation related to schedule changes, withdrawing from classes, and other transactions.

Ultimately, the student is responsible for their own educational experience.
